DE VIRTUTE HORATI COCLITIS

32) Romani interea Tarquini immemores securam vitam degebant. Tandem post multos dies Horatius dum trans Tiberim campum spectat magnam turbam virorum feminarumque vidit. Magno cum clamore trans pontem venerunt, statim portam urbis petierunt.

33) Horatius igitur, ‘Quo properatis?’ clamavit, ‘cur agros reliquistis?’ ‘Tarquinium fugimus,’ respondent. ‘Vir improbus crudelisque Romam petit. Rex Etruscorum quoque cum eo venit. Milites Etrusci domos nostras incendunt, segetes vastant. In urbe salutem petimus.’ (Vellacott, Ordinary Latin, p. 215)

Horatius Cocles...qui positus forte in statione pontis cum captum repente impetu Ianiculum atque inde citatos decurrere hostes vidisset trepidamque turbam suorum arma ordinesque relinquere, reprehensans singulos...testabatur neququam deserto praesidio eos fugere, iam plus hostium in Palatio Capitolioque quam in Ianiculo fore. (from Livy II, x)

37) Sine morā duo fortes viri procurrerunt, nomine Herminius et Spurius. ‘Nos tecum,’ inquiunt, ‘Horati, pontem protegere parati sumus civitatemque liberam conservare.’ Romani magno clamore constantiam virorum adprobaverunt: simul tres viri trans pontem processerunt et hostes expectabant.

38) Interea cives pontem summā vi rescindere coeperunt. Ruris incolae ita nuntiant: ‘Hostes ab urbe quattuor milia absunt: unā horā aderunt.’ Tum fabri, ‘Nos pontem,’ affirmant, ‘horis duobus rescindere possumus.’ Et Horatius, ‘Nos hostes unam horam,’ inquit, ‘armis repellere parati sumus. Neque enim sine deorum auxilio pugnabimus.’ Consul autem, ‘Si vos pro patriā,’ inquit, ‘summā fortitudine pugnabitis, vos di patrii certe adiuvabunt.’

39) Unā post horā agmen armatorum prope adest. Primus venit Tarquinius, post eum fortes milites. Ut viderunt in angustā pontis viā viros tres, primo stupent omnes, mox ridere inceperunt. Horatius comitesque tacent, scuta gladiosque paratos habent. Quod via modo decem pedes lata est, ex toto agmine Etruscorum modo tres viri simul in viā stare et cum Romanis decertare possunt.

40) Iamque incipit pugna: Omnes vulnera dant accipiuntque. Etrusci tres vulnera gravia accipiunt et pedem referunt: alii tres, deinde etiam alii procedunt, et omnes aut mortui aut vulnerati cadunt. Postremo ex agmine Etrusco nemo procedere audet. Porsenna Tarquinium spectat, Tarquinius ceteros Etruscos, Etrusci humum aut cælum: procedit nemo.

41) Tandem fabri Romani pontem securibus pæne totum resciderunt. Omnes opere desistunt, est silentium. ‘Iam finis est pugnæ, viri,’ clamant. ‘Pons statim cadet. Nunc tempus salutem petere.’ Horatius comites suos celeriter redire iussit, et duo viri trans pontem currunt. Ut currunt, pontem iam mobilem sentiunt, et mox pons totus ingenti stridore in turbidam aquam ceddit. (Vellacott, p. 216)

Tunc Cocles ‘Tiberine Pater’ inquit, ‘te sancte precor, hæc arma et hunc militem propitio flumine accipias.’ Ita sic armatus in Tiberim desiluit multisque superincidentibus telis incolumis ad suos tranavit. (from Livy, II 10)

44) Tum Tarquinius irā ac pudore commotus pilum dextrā sustulit. At Porsenna, ‘Neque ego te, Tarquini Superbe,’ inquit ‘virum tam fortem interficere sinam, nec milites Etrusci tam turpe factum æquo animo videbunt.’ Tarquinius pilum in humum demittit. Tandem Horatium labore atque vulneribus valde defessum cives læti ex aquā exceperunt. Etiam hostes simul magno clamore Horatii fortitudinem adprobant. (Vellacott, p217)

Grata erga tantam virtutem civitas fuit, statuā in comitio positā, agri quantum uno die circumaravit, datum. Privata quoque inter publicos honores studia eminebant, nam in magnā inopiā...unusquisque ei aliquid, fraudans se ipse victu suo, contulit. (from Livy II, 10)

CARMEN ‘GOLIÆ’ DE MATRIMONIO SACERDOTUM

non est Innocentius, immo nocens vere,
qui, quod Deus docuit, studet abolere;
jussit enim Dominus feminas habere,
sed hoc noster pontifex jussit prohibere.

Gignere nos præcipit Vetus Testamentum,
ubi Novum prohibet, nusquam est inventum;
a modernis latum est istud documentum,
ad quod nullum ratio præbet argumentum.

Dedit enim Dominus maledictionem
viro, qui non fecerat generationem:
ergo tibi consulo per hanc rationem
gignere, ut habeas benedictionem.

Nonne de militibus milites procedunt?
et reges a regibus qui sibi succedunt?
per locum a simili omnes jura lædunt,
clericos qui gignere crimen esse credunt.

Zacharias habuit prolem et uxorem,
nec prole quem genuit memini majorem;
baptizavit etenim nostrum Salvatorem;
pereat, qui teneat novum hunc errorem!

Innocentius: Pope Innocent III (1198-1216), who formalised the prohibition on marriage among the clergy. The first line is a joke upon his name (“not-harmful-one”).

immo: “on the contrary”, “quite the opposite”.

Novum: the New Testament, which (according to the author) does not mention the prohibition of marriage.

ut habeas: purpose clause, with the present subjunctive.

per locum a simili: “by argument from analogy/comparison”.

omnes...credunt: translate in the following order: omnes qui credunt crimen esse (“that it is a crime/sin”, indirect statement) clericos gignere (“for the clergy to have children”, another indirect statement).

Zacharias: Zacharias was the father of John the Baptist, who was supposed to have baptized the infant Jesus.

prole: ablative of comparison with “majorem”.

pereat: a jussive subjunctive;

teneat: could be translated “might hold/cling to”.

spectant: 'face towards'

orientem solem: 'towards the rising sun' i.e. 'East'

occasum solis: 'the setting of the sun' i.e. 'West'

HENRICI LAURENTII DE ARMENTARII UXORE

Trabibus teretibus, tabulis et cortice eucalypti cannonii structa est casula. Duæ cellæ sunt in hāc, tabulis fissis solo contabulato. Iuxta eam stat cocina item cortice structa maior quam casula ipsa et porticus.

Loca inculta ubique – loca inculta sine fine, nam plana est regio, sine collibus usquam. Solum acaciæ curtæ et putridæ crescent, sine virgultis. Nihil ad oculos levandos præter viriditatem fusiorem rararum casuarinarum quæ supra rivulum angustum pæne aquā stant susurrantes in aurā. Nihil humanitatis proprius quam taberna pæne ruata quae abest undeviginti milia passuum apud viam primam.

Armentarius, quondam colonus, cum ovibus abest. Uxor eius et liberi soli hīc relictii sunt.

Quattuor liberi siccati in specie qui pannos geregant circum casulam ludunt. Subito clamat quidam ex eis. 'Anguis, Matercula, ecce anguis!'

Provolut rustica macera et adusta e culinā, infantem ab humo eruptum in coxendice tenens sinistrā fustem tollit.

'Ubi est?' vociferatur.

'Ecce! Hīc! in ligna ingressus,' clamat puer maximus natu, acerbus vultu qui duodecimum annum agit. 'Ibi mane, mater! Recede. Eum habebo. Ego scelestum occidam.'

'Age! Huc veni, Thoma, aut ictus eris. Iussus statim veni, puer nequam.' clamat mater.

Invitus adulescentulus venit fustem maiorem quam ipse ferens. Tunc clamat exultans.

'Ecce! Abit, sub casulam.' Et avolat fuste elevato. Simul catenam frangit magnus canis niger et multigenus fulvis oculis qui indomitus studebat eis quæ fiebant et anguem illum persequitur. Sero autem venit puncto temporis, et extremo caudæ anguis evanescente nasus attingit rimam in tabulis. Paene simul descendit pueri fustus pellemque detrahit a naso predicto. Cerberus hoc flocci facit, et ædificium suffodere coepit, sed luctatus subigitur et constringitur. Is non perdendus est.

Iubet armentarii uxor liberos unā consistere prope canis stabulum dum anguem exspectat. Duas patellas lactis plenas affert et prope murum ponit ad anguem inescandum, sed hora præterit et ille se non exhibit.

cortice eucalypti cannonii: translate as ‘from stringy bark’

solo contabulato: ablative absolute, ‘floored with ...’

acaciæ curtæ: ‘native apple trees’

ad oculos levandos: gerundive ‘for eyes to be relieved’ i.e. ‘to relieve the eye’

Armentarius: ‘drover’ here duodecimum annum agit: ‘is in his twelfth year’, i.e. ‘eleven year old’.

sub casulam: sub takes the accusative if it means ‘go under’

fuste elevato: ablative absolute, ‘

multigenus: translate ‘of all breeds’

E GALFRIDI MANUMETENSIS HISTORIĀ REGUM BRITANNIÆ

1. XVI Erat tunc nomen insulæ Albion, quae e nemine, exceptis paucis gigantibus, inhabitabatur, amœno tamen situ locorum et copiā piscosorum fluminum, nemoribusque præelectā, affectum habitandi Bruto sociisque inferebat. Peragratis ergo quibusque provinciis, repertos gigantes ad cavernas montium fugant, patriam donante duce sortiuntur. Agros colere incipiunt, domos ædificare, ita ut brevi tempore terram ab ævo inhabitatam censeret. Denique Brutus de nomine suo insulam Britanniam, sociosque suos Britones appellat: volebat enim ex derivatione nominis memoriam habere perpetuam. Unde postmodum loqua gentis, quae prius Trojana sive curvum Graecum nuncupabatur, Britannica dicta est

At Corineus portionem regni quae sorti sua cesserat, ab appellatione sui nominis Corineam vocat, populumque Corineensem, exemplum ducis insecurus: qui cum præ omnibus qui advenerant electionem provinciarum posset habere, maluit regionem illam quæ nunc vel a cornu Britanniæ, vel per corruptionem prædicti nominis Cornubia appellatur.

Brutus was the first of a line of 99 kings, according to Geoffrey, who ruled Britain until the seventh century. The most famous of these kings was Arthur.

amœno situ ... præelectā: ablative absolute most favoured in the charming site of its regions.

inferebat: the subject is ‘it’ i.e. the island

Peragrat...provinciis: ablative absolute each of the regions having been explored

donante duce: ablative absolute with their leader giving

ita ut... censeret: so that you would think

terram inhabitatam: accusative + infinitive after censeret ... that the land had been inhabited

cum: here means although
